

I have been a Technology and Media Consultant professionally for the past ten years. For the first half of my career, I was self-employed as a Technology Consultant. It taught me how to stay vigilant, reliable and to be an honorable businessperson. For the second half, I was a Media Consultant. In that field, I was able to take my passion for science and sound to a career level. I have designed sound for a few major recording acts as well as received an award at Festival de Cannes 2013. Working in the media industry has given me some of the most interesting contacts and experiences. One of these contacts recognized my abstract methods for tackling some of the most challenging situations and offered to bring me in as an IT temp for his company.

I was back to breaking down problems to their root and provide an effective solution. My native skills and previous career background have brought me to a point where development is more attainable for me now than it was before. The reason why I have chosen to pursue development is because it encompasses all that the other industries have been lacking and that is to create efficiency and contact. I am eager to see where this path takes me. I am confident that my attention to detail, eye for superior quality of product and respect for estimated completion times will showcase my more unique qualities. I look forward to working with you.
